DANIELLE M. DAYRIES

Career Counselor and Resume Writer

Danielle Dayries is a senior level career consultant and is currently head of the successful career consulting and outplacement firm, Danielle M Dayries & Associates. Danielle works with clients from across the United States as well as across the globe. After serving hundreds of clients in diverse occupations, she has maintained a 99% satisfaction record by closing the gap between her clients' current and desired employment states.

Danielle gives her clients an advantage by coaching them at every level, including:

- Providing customized marketing materials specifically tailored to each person's goals and strengths. These materials include résumés, CVs, biographies, cover letters, social media profiles and reference materials.
- Utilizing resources and contacts gained through years of work experience to ensure her clients can search for positions quickly and efficiently with companies they prefer.
- Personalized coaching using interview rehearsals and job search action plans to effectively achieve the client's career goals.
- Educating the client on how to effectively network within their target industry.

Danielle's career has extended beyond DMD & Associates and into several additional organizations. She currently holds a management position with Ricklin-Echikson Associates (REA), an international career counseling agency operating in 47 countries. Danielle also provided new business development and career consulting for a nationally recognized outplacement firm providing services to clients in the financial, construction, IT and medical sector. In addition, she is the Power Ties Coordinator for New Orleans Outreach, a non-profit organization providing enrichment programs to New Orleans schools. With Power Ties, she creates community partnerships that link professionals to students as a means to expose students to various professions and educate students on job search tactics.

Danielle also enjoys a robust speaking schedule with appearances including AmeriCorps, the New Orleans Business and Professional Women's Association and multiple Job Fairs. She stands ready to share her professional advice about a number of different topics, including how to ask for a raise and maximize network contacts.

Danielle is a member of the Loyola University of New Orleans Alumni Association and manages an internship/mentoring program with several universities.

Due to her outstanding work in the business community, the Governor of Louisiana appointed Danielle to serve on the Lafayette, LA Workforce Investment Board. There, she is responsible for aligning government and business resources so citizens can develop careers and businesses can find and retain employees. Danielle's accomplishments are a result of her 20 plus years of diversified experience and dedication to her client's success.
